

CONTACTING ORTHODOX CHURCHES IN THE BRITISH ISLES AND IRELAND

Over the years correspondents have often asked us for directions to their nearest Orthodox Church. A full list of all such churches throughout the British Isles and Ireland can be found in the 'Directory of Orthodox Parishes and Clergy in the British Isles', available from 26, Denton Close, Botley, Oxford OX2 9BW. However, if you are interested only in English-speaking churches, please see <http://www.englishliturgy.org>

Virtually all the Orthodox churches in the British Isles and Ireland which use some English in their services are canonically dependent on a bishop of one of three Local Orthodox Churches present in this country. In order of size in this country these are:

The Patriarchate of Constantinople. This has its administrative centre in Istanbul (Turkey) under Patriarch Bartholomew. The diocesan bishop is Archbishop Gregorios who lives in London.

The Patriarchate of Moscow has two dioceses in this country. This has its administrative centre in Moscow (The Russian Federation) under Patriarch Kyrill. The bishop in charge of its Sourozh Diocese in Great Britain and Ireland, which goes back to the post-Second World War period, is Archbishop Elisey who lives in London. The Russian Orthodox Church Outside Russia, which goes back to the older Russian emigration after the 1917 Revolution, is a self-governing worldwide part of the same Patriarchate, but its immediate administrative centre is in New York under Metropolitan Hilarion. The bishop in charge of its diocese in Great Britain and Ireland is Archbishop Mark who lives in Munich. See: <http://www.sourozh.org/parishes-eng/>

The Patriarchate of Antioch. This has its administrative centre in Damascus (Syria) under Patriarch Ignatius. The mainly ex-Anglican communities under it in this country are looked after by Metropolitan John of Western Europe who lives in Paris.

It is to be noted that all Orthodox churches in these Isles use the Julian Calendar and Paschal dating for all moveable feasts in the year, such as Palm Sunday, Easter, Ascension Day, Pentecost and all Sundays. However, as regards the fixed feasts, such as Christmas and Saints' days, churches in the Patriarchates of Constantinople and Antioch use the Gregorian Calendar and the more traditional parishes of the Patriarchate of Moscow use the Julian calendar. In practice, this means that those using the Gregorian Calendar celebrate fixed feasts thirteen days earlier than churches using the Julian Calendar.
